Abstract:	Daniel M. Ogden, Jr. was enrolled as political science student at Washington State University following military service during World War II. He earned a master's degree and doctorate from the University of Chicago. Returning to the Pacific Northwest, he moved to Pullman and joined the WSU faculty. During this time he engaged in a numerous political campaigns including work as an organizer for the John F. Kennedy presidential campaign. Following Kennedy's successful campaign, Dan Ogden and his wife Valerie, a multiple term Washington state senator during the 1990s, moved to Washington D.C. where he held a position in the Department of the Interior. He became Dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences at Colorado State University in 1968 and participated in local and state politics over the following years including an unsuccessful run for a congressional seat in 1976. In 1978, he returned to Washington D.C. and was named director of the Office of Power Marketing Coordination in the Department of Energy under the Carter administration. The position included the oversight of the Bonneville Power Administration's marketing agency. In 1984 he left that position and moved to Vancouver, Washington where he headed the Public Power Council. Following his retirement in 1988 Ogden continued his involvement in local politics and became chair of the Clark County Democratic Central Committee. {Accessioned as wsuv.2007.004}

Biography

Daniel M. Ogden Jr. began his college career in 1940 as a freshman at the State College of Washington and received a BA in political science with highest honors in 1944. After service in the 89th infantry Division in the second world war, in 1947 he took an MA and in 1949 a PhD in political science at the University of Chicago. His master's thesis was on the Washington Blanket Primary. His doctoral dissertation was the Development of Federal Power Policy in the Pacific Northwest. In 1949 he joined the political science faculty of Washington State university. On leave in 1960 to be the Democratic National Committee Faculty fellow, he served as an advance man four times in the Kennedy campaign. In 1961 he joined the Secretary's staff in the U.S. Department of the Interior. In 1965 he became Assistant Director of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and in 1967 Director of Budget for the entire Department of Interior. In 1968 he accepted an appointment as Dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences at Colorado State University. He resigned to run for Congress in 1976 but was not elected. In 1978 he returned to Washington D.C. to serve as Director of the Office of Power Marketing Coordination in the newly formed Department of Energy. In 1984 he became Manager of the Public Power Council, a trade association of the preference customers of the Bonneville Power Administration and he and his wife Valeria moved to Vancouver, Washington. He retired in 1988. In 1990 his wife Valeria was elected to the Washington state House of Representatives and served six terms. She was Speaker Pro-Tem for four years. During that time Dr. Ogden was active in support of her political career, part of the time as Chairman of the Clark County Democratic Central Committee.

Scope and Contents note

Political ephemera make up the majority of the first series of this collection. Included are posters from the Kennedy and Johnson Campaigns (1960); convention souvenirs from the Republican nomination of Eisenhower in the 1950's; various pamphlets from individual candidates running for political office (including Fred Harris, Frank Church, Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson, Birch Bayh, Mo Udall, Adlai Stevenson, Eisenhower, J.F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, Goldwater, George McGovern, Richard Nixon, Jimmy Carter and Dan Ogden; Democratic National Committee booklets and pamphlets from the 1960's and 1970's covering issues on labor, education, women, voting and poverty; bumper stickers and other ephemera from Ogden's campaign as well as from Stevenson, Eisenhower, Kennedy, L.B. Johnson and Nixon, a selection of campaign buttons for presidential campaigns; Nixon, Stevenson, Eisenhower, Magnuson, Taft; 1996 Democratic Party convention materials; papers, essays and lecture notes by Ogden on campaign organization, participating in a political party and other topics in political science; documents, campaign organization records and memos from the 1960 Kennedy campaign including notes from advance men, campaign planning committee guide for the advance men, press supplement, travel itinerary for Kennedy and correspondence; a record (45 rpm) used as theme music in Jack Kennedy's presidential campaign; short audio recording for a "register to vote" campaign and an audio recording with John F. Kennedy regarding his Catholic religion; a video produced by the Advertising Council for a "Register to Vote" campaign and a video produced by the John F. Kennedy Presidential campaign announcing his visit to individual states. The video was used on his campaign; materials from the dollars for Democrats drive; large volume titled "What Nixon Said", distributed by the Democratic National Committee. Includes statements by Nixon from the 1950's, 1960's and early 1970's; guides for students and young Democrats; 1956 republican Campaign Materials; copies of Democratic Digest, a periodical for the Democratic Party.

Materials relating to the many facets of his career in public power are included in the series of this collection. Many of the materials were collected and arranged for the purpose of Ogden's dissertation, The Development of Federal Power Policy in the Pacific Northwest. Included are pamphlets, ephemera, public and private power reports, correspondence, newspaper clippings, research notes, legislative documents and the dissertation. Materials on Public/Private Power issues collected after completion of Ogden's dissertation in 1949 are also included.

Arrangement note

The collection consists of eleven boxes, which have been arranged in five file drawers located in the Archive. The collection is arranged in series.

Series A contains political campaign materials where files are organized by campaign date and by the topic of the specific political tactics used in campaign materials from various years. In addition documents and essays collected and written by Ogden on the Washington State blanket primary are also included. The files remain in the original order received. This series resides in two drawers.

Series B is arranged by the subject (sometimes relating to a particular dissertation chapter but also including materials dated after its completion). The files are organized regardless of date, the way in which the materials were originally ordered by the author. This series resides in three drawers and includes some books and publications that are located in the Archive's Book Collection in a section called the Daniel M. Ogden Collection.
